FOREWORD

Little did we realize, four years ago, when we, tottering Freshmen, first entered our future Alma Mater and gazed up the steep ascent to the lofty position of the Seniors, that Father Time would so swiftly make his way around the dial and we would have gained the heights of our intermediate climb only to find another one, even greater than we had thought the first to be looming ahead of us as a guard, demanding that we pay our toll before wending our way farther toward the summit of that greater hill of life—Success.

We cannot leave behind us all that we have attained, but each year the path is made clearer and the way more bright as new footprints are added on the Sands of Time. Here have we recorded only our most important ones:

"Footprints, which, perhaps another,
Seeing, will take heart again."

DEDICATION

—TO—

J. Douglas Torrance, our true friend and beloved class teacher, we affectionately dedicate this book.

Sons of the Black and Red

Sons of the Black and Red,
Fight for your Alma Mater;
Fight for the fame of the Athens name,
Undaunted forge ahead;
Hearts that are brave and true,
Loyal and eager, too.
Shoulder to shoulder fight and win,
Sons of the Black and Red.

Sons of the Black and Red,
Cheer while the team is scoring;
Over the foe let the victors go,
Triumphant march ahead;
Hark, how the bleachers cheer,
Play for the vict'ry near,
Shoulder to shoulder fight and win,
Sons of the Black and Red.

CLASS HISTORY (1923)

'Twas in our hardwood seats in school,
About four years ago,
We sat and suffered many a dread,
As Freshmen do you know

We trembled at the thought of what
Some cruel tongue might say.
Full well we knew it was to be
Our first and blackest day.

Of paper each one brought a lot,
Enough to last a week;
But upper classmen found it all,
They were so poor and meek;

We very soon became quite wise,
And brought a smaller pack;
So Seniors had to hunt for cash
To buy themselves a stack.

Of course, we had a party then
As Freshmen do, you know;
With lots of games for everyone,
And every girl a beau.

Our heads were swelled the second year,
When Sophomores we became;
Hazing Freshmen right and left,
We added to our fame.

The faculty soon we learned to bluff,
And pull down easy marks;
Because we made such class-room hits,
They thought we all were sharks.

The division of labor soon began,
Each member found a trade;
Octa studied, while Jack would loaf,
And "Red" tried bluffing to earn his grade.

"Kat" McKee began to flirt,
And "Pick" to make the pies;
"Bill" Moler making classes laugh,
And "Connie" alibies.

To fiction Wayne did turn his mind,
And read of Jessie James;
While Walter Muir spent his time
In mashing hearts of dames.

In basket-ball we showed our stuff,
The tournament we won;
We gave the men for many a team,
Before our course was run.

Old Father Time turned round his clock,
And Juniors we became;
No class in good old Athens High
Has made a finer name.

To things more grand we now did turn,
And gave a famous play;
Both boys and girls the tourney won,
'Tis remembered to this day.

A rough-neck party then we had,
And started something new;
But Mills rolled down the sliding board,
And nearly broke in two.

Of course we furnished many boys,
And ladies too, you know;
For operettas, plays, and teams,
And always will do so.

The teachers then promoted us,
And Seniors we became;
'Twas only to get rid of us,
We knew full well their game.

To Athens High we gave our share,
In each activity;
On team, on stage, or in debate,
Our members there you'll see.

Oh teachers, list ye yet a little,
If this you chance to read;
Though we have often worried you,
With many a heedless deed;

Though we have often come and crabbed,
Though we did often tease;
Though we would loaf and bluff and cram,
And seldom seem to please.

Still in our hearts we'll always hold
The memory of you;
Of all that you have ever done,
And ever yet will do.

—Lloyd Wagner.

Senior Class Prophecy

Kay lay stretched lazily on the grass beneath a beautiful weathered oak. As he lay watching the riot of gold and brown of the leaves above him, he thought musingly of his classmates who had graduated in 1923.

Kay was listlessly gazing about when he hastily sat up, for what was this queer sight he was seeing? From the oak blew three sturdy leaves, which carried by the slight breeze alighted at his feet. But what was the one with the red top saying? Kay blinked his eyes and sat up to listen, and as he listened he heard a booming voice say, "I am Barret Young, and my companions are Herbert McConihay and Bill Moler. Herbert and I are going to the city to become America's foremost salesmen, and Bill is going to be a broker on Wall Street."

Kay rubbed his eyes hard for he saw approaching three gayly dressed lady leaves. They also stopped, and spoke proudly, "We are Helen Burson, Jane Cooper, and Dot Dailey, and are traveling to the city to establish a millinery shop."

By this time Kay was very alert, and exclaimed, "I will stop all, and inquire where and whence they are journeying, and what they are going to do."

Here comes a gayer sight. All were laughing and chatting, and they needed no invitation to halt. They laughingly explained, that they were Dot Jones, Betty Jones, Marian Sprague, Angie Boring, Jackie Sweeney, and Billy Hughes, and were on their way to movieland in California. At these remarks they gayly tripped onward.

As Kay waited impatiently for more to come, he spied three lady leaves advancing, seriously conversing, and this is what they said, "We are Mary Curry, Octa Kincade, and Ida Burke, and we are going to the tenement district, to help the hungry and helpless," and they hurried along.

As Kay sat brooding over their serious faces and determined airs, he hears music, and glancing up saw two lady and two gentlemen leaves gayly singing and to him they sang, "We are Ruby Gladys Mercer, Helen Brown, Joe Farley and Maurice Guthrie, and we are starting our travels all ever the world to sing for people and try and make them happier.

Kay gazed transfixed as the singers passed out of sight, at three beautiful maiden leaves, who were dancing and laughing toward him. One perched lightly on a near-by stump and sweetly chanted, "I am Katharine McKee and these are my chums, Margaret Crow and Gilberta Hill. Margaret and I are going to travel in Europe and learn about our foreign neighbors, while Gilberta is going to Paris to begin her career as an opera star, and see that dignified young lady walking down there? That is Miss Anne Pickering, our beloved teacher, and she is going to fill her appointment at Columbia, as dean of the girls. That is Miss Danford with her, and the young gentleman leaf is her escort." Kay had not spoken yet aloud, but now he hesitatingly queried, "Are they married?" At this remark the three ladies giggled delightedly and started briskly on their journey without answering.

Again Kay was brought to look in wonder at the beautifully dressed maiden leaves coming and they excitedly explained, "We are Evelyn Watkins, and Vinnie Carter and Elizabeth Horn. We made our own dresses and hats, and are going to Chicago and be dress designers for a wonderful big store. See those ladies dressed as nurses, they are Olive Rose, Theodore Junod and Lena Hottel, and the gentlemen with them are Earl Hickman, and James Devlin, who are famous doctors, and these nurses are the best in America. But we must be going now as we have far to travel." Kay turning swiftly, saw a tiny car, much resembling a flivver, which rattled noisily and halted at his side. The talkative chauffeur dressed as a minister jumped out and fairly chirped, "I am Edwin Mills, and those two lasses are Theodore Lawhead and Eva Mills, and the two lads are Walter Muir and Jack Quest. I just married them and they are going in quest of a home." At this the flushed creature slammed the door and off they rattled.

Kay wonderingly started, and glancing up into the old oak, spoke rather seriously, for happy-go-lucky Kay, "Well, old top, it was rather a foolish dream, but you resemble dear A.H.S. and your children leave you after four seasons, as we leave after four years. Your children go back to Mother Earth, while we seek to satisfy our various ambitions."

As Kay's thoughts flew to thoughts of supper, he musingly murmured, "I wonder if it were Ediwn's flivver that awakened me?"

Junior History

At an early hour of a very cold winter evening when the soft snow was falling on the housetops, the children gathered around the huge fireplace to hear the stories of a wandering fiddler. He had stopped at the door that night to ask for a place to rest and Mrs. Clark could not refuse an old man on such a cold evening. He looked so feeble, but still there was a twinkle in his eye that might have told a close observer that his life had been full of pleasant hours. The old man was soon seated before the blazing fire. He looked about him with a satisfiedgaze and was ready to begin.

"My children, I am going to tell you of the happy days I spent in Athens High School," he began. He gazed into the fire as if he could see back over the years and continued, "For eight long years the members of our class walked along the road always looking up at "the hill" as the goal for all our labors. At last our dreams came true.

One beautiful autumn morning our class gathered at the school to hear of the things we should do to become a part of the school. After spending much time in vain search for an imaginary room, we learned that all advice should not be taken. We learned several rules of conduct that first day.

As Freshmen we had a very happy time. We learned all the songs and yells and were feeling very important. One afternoon we heard the glad sound of four bells. The Seniors were planning to welcome us and show that we were Freshmen in spite of our solemn faces. We were called to the platform. To realize how terrible this experience was, you should know that we had never ventured from our seats before. Even now, when I am an old man, the thoughts of my terror and the memory of being pushed roughly from my seat by a heartless Junior comes back to me. We were greeted with a loud cry of "Yea, Freshies." After being presented with green caps, we marched around the room and finally to our seats. Later we had a party.

As Sophomores we wrote themes and studied algebra, but we also attended the athletic contests. We were always well represented in athletics. Our party for this year was very successful as it was well attended and every Sophomore entered into the game as well as the dances. Whenever all did not seem to be "well with the world" we "kept pushing" and paved our way to our Junior year.

Soon after becoming Juniors we elected our officers and class teacher. Our officers were very efficient and, with Miss Danford as class teacher, we had a live class. The class party was only a beginning of what we did later with a larger party.

John, a strong boy of fifteen who expected to enter high school soon, had listened closely, hoping to hear something of athletics. At last he said, "Did this Junior class have no people on the teams?"

"Yes," the aged man replied, "Our class was represented in football, baseball, basket-ball and track. Not only these people brought honor to our class and school, but from our class came three fine debaters who deserve as much credit as the athletes.

Many members of our class were on the scholastic honor roll. As Juniors we did fine things. As Seniors we expected to do even better.

It was growing late and the aged fiddler was very tired. He seemed to go back into the past. He closed his tale with the thoughts he had had when a Junior, and that every Junior must feel. These are the words he used: "When we look into the long avenue of the future and see the good there is for each one of us to do, we realize after all what a beautiful thing it is to work, and to live, and be happy."

The History of the Sophomore Class

One evening in the early spring a young man and woman were driving along a lovely road, somewhere in the State of Virginia. They did not know where this road might lead, but in the distance there seemed to be something directly in front of the road. As they gradually approached this "something," they found it to be a gypsy camp. Their first thought was to have a gypsy tell them a story which they had wanted to hear for some time. It was "The History of the Sophomore Class of Athens High School."

One of the best of the gypsy story tellers started her crystal and began:

One day, I can't quite make out the date, but I think it was two years ago, the Sophomore Class of today began its career in the Athens High School by beginning as everyone does, even the Seniors, as Freshmen. I see the Seniors laughing and making fun of the innocent dears. Once in a while a good joke is played on a "Freshie" who seems to get irritated easily. Never mind (turning the crystal slowly) as the year progresses, the Freshmen are teased no more, but instead are showing the upper classmen what they are able to do in the way of studying and taking a part in the activities of the school. Several are found to have talent for doing work which is a great help to the school. John Algeo is elected as President with Miss Pickering as the class teacher. A very successful party is being held at a place, I believe it is called the Armory. It is a Thanksgiving party. Everyone seems to be enjoying himself. (Crystal slowing turning.) Their Freshman year is passing very successfully. They have shown A. H. S. what they really are capable of doing.

(New colors appear in crystal.)

A new semester starts. Ah! I see the new Sophomore Class taking an active part in the affairs of the high school. New officers are chosen. I see a small boy. Is he the President? Yes. His name is "Ted" Schmidt. A girl by the name of Jenny Moore is Vice-President. Mrs. Price is the class teacher. They seem to make very good officers because the class is progressing very rapidly. I see more merrymaking, — another party. This party is different from the last one they had, more elaborate, better planned, better suited to the needs of the class. The faculty again chaperone the party.

(The crystal slowly stopping.)

They have another very succesful year, not only in having parties, but in gaining new knowledge by studying, taking part in athletics, and helping A. H. S. in as many good ways as possible. The signs for next year are very promising; more so than ever before.

(The crystal stops.)

"Isn't that lovely?" exclaimed both the young man and woman together. "It is so strange for you to know about a class in a high school so far away from here."

"Oh, I know something about every high school that you can mention, but the person who knows nothing of the present Sophomore Class of Athens High School needs to learn about it now, because the Sophomore Class of today will play a large part in the affairs of the Athens High School of tomorrow."

Individual Football Write-ups

CAPTAIN SWEENEY

"Jackie" possessed every requirement for piloting a football team, and he surely did perform his duties without fault. "Jackie" played a fine game of football during the past season, but just when we needed him most he was taken ill. He graduates in June and his absence from the team will be keenly felt.

SWYERS

Last year was Swyer's first seascn for Athens High School. Swyers was a demon at football and he will strengthen football teams in the future, since he is only a Freshman.

WILCOX

Wilcox played a stellar game of football at the tackle position. He was out of the game during the latter part of the season.

JOHN MILLER

John is a West Virginia product who came to us last year, and added great strength to our last year's football team. John is a Junior and of course we expect a great deal from him next season.

GUTHRIE

"Tweeny" came back to school from the West. This past season he played tackle on the team and he played that position well. His eyes were always open and he recovered more fumbles than any other man on the team. "Tweeny" leaves us in June.

STARKEY

Whenever in the game, Starkey always played hard. This was Starkey's first year on the team. Next year he should be a "Big Noise" on the team.

MOLER

"Bill" played a hard game of football. He played an end position, and he played it well. Bill was exceptionally good at jerking long passes. He leaves us this year.

WATKINS

"Germ" is a fighter, he displayed good football every time he was called upon. "Germ" could play an end or center position. He receives a diploma this year.

RHOADS

"Dusty" played a good brand of football last season. He was the most consistent ground gainer on the squad. In the Welston game he was injured and was unable to play the rest of the season. Without a doubt he will "go" good next year.

KENNEDY

"Tubby," even if he does possess a little fat, can surely play a good game of football. This was "Tubby's first year on the team and we expect him to go "big" next season.

SHAFER

"Small but mighty" is Shafer. Sereno never lets a man go through him, and he is a tank when on the offense. Last season was Sereno's third season on the squad, and his playing ability shows clearly that he is more than worthy to be there. The letter men of last season's team have enough confidence in him to elect him pilot of next year's team.

CLARKE

"Bob" is a very able center. Seldom he made a bad pass to a backfield man. This was "Bob's" first year on the team, and he is expected to play an even better game next season than he did last.

MAPLES

"Bub" is "right there" when it comes to playing football. He was feared by every opponent last year, and good reasons they had to fear him.

ALGEO

"Hog" played halfback on the team of '22. He has grit and is a fighter to the very last. "Hog" will be with us two more seasons and we feel sure he will secure a place on the team next year.

McKINLEY

"Pete" is in every way a football player. He was one of the "bright lights" on the team of '22. "Pete" will be with us two more seasons and we feel sure he will do wonders next year.

BAKER

"Bill" is one of the best defensive players that ever held a position on an Athens football team. Seldom did a player get by "Bill." Sad to relate we have Bill with us only one more season.

DAVIS

One of the smallest men on the team, but in every sense of the word a football player. Whenever called upon, "Davy" played quarterback in a creditable manner. With the experience he has gained this season, he should very ably fill Sweeney's place next year.

Individual Basket-ball Write-ups

SHAFER

Sereno captained the team during the past season in fine style. His playing was superb throughout the entire season. He handles the ball with great accuracy, and never gives up until the final whistle. He will be with us next season.

MUIR

Walter played center during the first part of the season and then was changed to forward where he was most needed. Walter played a hard game of basket-ball. This is his last year "on the hill," and his graduation will mean a vacancy hard to fill on next year's team.

WATKINS

"Germ" is a player of high caliber. He plays hard just as he does in all athletics. "Germ" leaves us in June.

COWAN

"Ted" was elected captain for next year by the letter men of the team of '22 and '23. "Ted" came back to us after a year's absence in the "Southland." He was a member of the team of '22 and '23. He plays a steady game of basketball. His services will be greatly needed on the next year's team.

DAVIS

"Davy" is a blue streak on the basket-ball court. He played circles around his opponents, and was greatly feared by opposing teams. "Davy" was high point man of the team.

KAHLER

Kahler played very well during the first part of the season. We all feel that he can still play a better game of basket-ball than he did last season. Much is expected of him next winter.

DEVLIN

"Jim" was a star on the basket-ball court last season. He played for the sole purpose of winning. He worked with the team like clock-work. His services will be missed next season. Devlin is a fine floor man.

McKINLEY

A wonderful shot under the basket is "Pete." He is a hard player, and filled every requirement for a good center. He will without a doubt play that position next season. This year is "Pete's" first attempt at the game.

We must here recognize the efforts of those who substituted. They gave all their efforts to build up a good quintet. The school wishes to recognize them at this time.

Girls' Basket-ball — 1922 and 1923

The girl's basket-ball team made a very creditable showing the past season, regardless of the fact that only one game, out of five attempts, was placed in the winning column. The squad was built around two girls earning their letters on the team of '21 and '22. These girls were Helen Burson and Dorothy Dailey.

Athens battled with the following teams: Nelsonville, Lancaster, McArthur, Marshfield, and John Hancock. The only encounter won was that with McArthur.

The lineup follows:

Right Forward.....Beatrice Kinsel

Left Forward.....Dorothy Dailey (Capt.)

Center..... Juanita McKinley

Right Guard.....Helen Burson (Mgr.)

Left Guard.....Amy Morgan

Subs: Young, Boring, Mansfield, Drake, Marshall, Woods, R. Jones, Nickolson.

Since only four girls of the squad graduate this June, the prospects for a winning team next year are very bright.

Baseball, Track and Tennis Outlook

Up until the time this book went to press two games had been played. The opposing teams were John Hancock High and Nelsonville High. The team displayed good team-work and played every branch of the game in splendid style. Athens High appears to have a team made up of heavy hitters. Sweeney, McKinley, and Hughes, are doing the twirling, while Rhoades wears the mask behind the bat this year. The remaining games are as follows: Murray City—May 4 (there); Parkersburg—May 5 (here); Chauncey—May 9 (here); Zanesville—May 11 (there); Aquinas—May 12 (there); John Hancock—May 18 (here); Logan—May 26 (there); Alumni—May 30 (here).

The track team has had one encounter thus far. Logan was the opponent. Although we met defeat, the showing was good. The team is training hard, and it is evident that the remaining scores will be quite different. Athens High School meets Logan once more and are also entered in the section meet at Ohio University and the "Big Six" at Columbus.

This is the first year Athens High has been represented by a tennis team. We have defeated Greenfield and a winning season is anticipated.

Both the track and tennis teams are coached by Physical Director L. L. Cunningham.

"Davy"

The above illustrations are from posters printed in our school shop to advertise athletic contests. The cuts are all carved from wood and are the work of William Davis, who is also a star in every athletic department. Wood engraving is one of the oldest methods of illustrating and is very difficult, but "Davy" is becoming quite an expert as these examples show.

All of the cards are printed in two or more colors, and they do much to promote interest in our athletic events.

Davis is to be with us for another year and he plans to produce a wood-cut for every game next season, some of them to be in two colors. It is to be hoped that others of the manual training department will also become interested in this work, and, with our printers, help to advertise the school and our teams.

The Arena

This year's Arena is undoubtly the best and the largest Arena ever put out in Athens High. The members of the staff worked hard, and their efforts have made it a success. They surely deserve all the credit that can be given them for their fine co-operation in giving us such an interesting year book. They started their work early so that the Arena could be put out sooner than ever before. Formerly it did not appear until during the very last days of school. Before work could be begun, it was necessary for the School Board to give its consent. This it gave very readily, and has been more than willing to help the staff in every way possible. The efforts of the Board are certainly appreciated to the fullest extent.

The Seniors were given the complete monopoly of the sale of the Arenas. Cards were printed and it was announced that the two Seniors selling the largest number of Arenas should each receive a first class leather bound Arena. The next three highest should each receive an Arena, similar to the ones being sold, free.

The merchants and business men of Athens have been very generous in helping the staff, by giving advertisements. This made it possible to put the book out at a very moderate price.

Robert Dixon, the Editor for next year's Arena, and Kenneth Wilcox, the next year's Business Manager, will be expected to make improvements on this book next year, if that be possible.

Special mention should be made of the work of Lowell Robinson. Lowell is a new student in Athens High School, and his talent was discovered just in time to secure his help in the art work for this year's publication. He is a willing worker and his efforts have helped make the book the challenging success that it is — for you'll have to agree that it is a success. Here's to the Staff, Outsiders, and Willing Subscribers that made it so!

MEGAPHONE STAFF

The Megaphone

In yet another line has Athens High School shown its superiority. In athletics it is well known that Athens High School holds a prominent place. In order to be well balanced, a school must have a variety of interests, so journalism has been added slowly but surely to the high place it now holds. "The Megaphone," the high school newspaper, offers opportunities to those students who are journalistically inclined, and assists in developing their talents in this line. It is an unquestioned fact that "The Megaphone" holds a high rank among high school papers. "The Megaphone" of 1921-1922, in the competition conducted annually by the Department of Journalism of Ohio State University to determine the relative merits of high school publications of the State, won the first honor. The schools were divided according to enrollment, and Athens High School was given a place in the group of high schools having an enrollment of between three hundred and fifty and five hundred. From this group, "The Megaphone" was adjudged the best all-around paper.

Of course, the greatest part of the success of "The Megaphone" should be attributed to the staff. Those on the staff have worked steadily and untiringly to make our paper the very best that they could. Much credit should be given them because this work on the paper is added to their school work, and therefore much time and effort have been sacrificed for the paper.

No high school paper could be a success without the co-operation of the student body. "The Megaphone" has been exceptionally fortunate in having this co-operation. Each student can feel that he has a part in the paper because everyone is urged to hand in articles and things of interest for its betterment.

A large share of praise is due our faculty advisors. Their assistance, kindly and constructive criticism, and patient direction, are thoroughly appreciated and gratefully remembered by those of the staff.

"The Megaphone" stands now as a memorial to all those who have worked unceasingly in former years to attain for it its present success. It is the culmination of their ambitions for it, and may it in coming years, yet surpass itself.

Scholarship Certificates

In practically all high schools, letters and certificates are given to those partaking in athletics, those who have played in the required number of games; but in very few are certificates granted to those who excel in their school work, to those who have played the game well in their studies and have come out with credit to themselves. Athens High School has seen and recognized this defect and sought to remedy it.

This year, certificates of merit were given to all those who had an average of ninety per cent or over. Those receiving certificates were: Audra Blackwood, 90.75; Edith Burroughs, 92.8; Wm. Burroughs, 92.5; Thelma Bingman, 90.8; Ida Burke, 90.7; Margaret Crow, 90.3; Violet Collins, 93.2; Goldie Cross, 90.25; Dolly Cunningham, 92.5; Alice Carter, 92.25; Verna Danford, 90.4; Robert Dixon, 95; Christine Dailey, 92.6; Jno. Edwards, 93.25; Marcella Fienup, 95; Anna Mae Fenxel, 93; Harold Giesecke, 90.75; Lillian Grimes, 92.75; Lucile Howell, 91.75; Clinton Horn, 91.5; Dwight Herron, 91.75; Eliz. Horn, 92.5; Pauline Jones, 91.5; Alberta Junod, 90.5; Eliz. Jones, 91.8; Berneice Kelly, 91.25; Jno. Klinder, 95.25; Louise Kerr, 92.6; Virginia Knecht, 95.75; Octa Kincade, 93.25; Frances Morton, 93.6; Doris Morton, 94; Clifford Moriarity, 90.2; Josephine Marshall, 96.5; Charlene Martin, 92.75; Amy Morgan, 95.2; Eliz. Morgan, 92; Edwin Mills, 90.5; Ruby Gladys Mercer, 94; Thelma Nicholson, 91.6; Lucille Overmyer, 90.75; Maycle Pruden, 94.8; Geo. Pruden, 95; Aileen Rauch, 91.25; Vianna Roush, 94.2; Fredia Sutton, 91.5; Jno. Shrigley, 90.25; Bernice Stanley, 90.4; Pauline Swanson, 96.2; Theo. Schmidt, 94; Mary Stalder, 94;

Marion Sprague, 95.2; Rose Violet, 90; Lloyd Wagner, 91.25; Sheldon Wadley, 91.25; Hallene Woods, 92.75; Thomas Wood, 90; Harold Wyckoff, 91; Mildred Williams, 93.4; E. Zick, 91; F. Van Dyke, 91.5.

This shows that a goodly percentage of the students are real students. Of course, it would be better if there were a larger percentage, but we are glad it is as large as it is.

This creates a precedent for future years. Those who do not graduate this year, will work harder than ever next year, to insure themselves a place upon the honor roll. Something has been needed to put more interest into the school work, and this plan of giving certificates to those on the honor roll, supplies the need. Competition will be strong and thus the scholastic standing may easily be raised and the high school morale bettered.

Do you want to be among the honor students? Of course you do. These certificates are a good thing, in that each one who receives one, feels that his efforts and work have not been in vain, and that he is really appreciated. Scholarship is coming more to the front and is being given more attention. It is as much, if not more, of an honor to receive a certificate for school work accomplished than to receive one for athletics.

Hurrah for the students! And may there be still more real ones next year!

Debating Teams

Top Row—Kenneth Wilcox.

Middle Row—Virginia Knecht, Mr. Rupp, Harold Wyckoff, Mrs. Price, Ruby Gladys Mercer.

First Row—Elizabeth Jones, Robert Dixon, Joseph Farley, Marion Sprague, Barrett Young.

Debate

Debating has proved to be one of the outstanding features of Athens High School's activities this year. Much hidden forensic ability has been brought to light. Debating insures a development of self-assurance and confidence which might not be gained otherwise.

Our debaters marched through their debates with flying colors, taking all with them and brushing away all opposition. The Ohio University supervised, under Prof. Cooper's leadership, three triangular debates in Southeastern Ohio, while Marietta College supervised three triangular debates in Eastern Ohio, the winners to meet in the grand finale for the championship of Southeastern Ohio. Athens came under the supervision of Ohio University. The question under discussion was: "Resolved, that the Parliamentary Cabinet form a government of Great Britain would more perfectly advance the highest interests of the United States than does its present form." The first debates were with Wellston and Logan, the other points of our triangle. The Negative team won from Wellston, and the Affirmative team defeated Logan, both by a 3 to 0 score. The news of this victory was hilariously received by the student body. As winner of the small triangular debate, we were then in the triangular debate with Washington C. H. and Portsmouth, the winners of the other two. As in the previous meets, Athens High School came out the victors of both of these debates, with scores of 2 to 1. Then did excitement run high! As champions of Southeastern Ohio, we were to compete with the champions of Eastern Ohio, which proved to be Cadiz. Cadiz was named champion of Eastern Ohio because of a superioriy of grades instead of points. On the night of the grand finale, our Affirmative team was defeated 2 to 1 by the Negative of Cadiz, at Marietta, while our Negative team defeated 2 to 1, the Affirmative team of Cadiz at Athens. Athens then had 13 points to their opponent's 5; so we feel that morally we are entitled to be called the champions of Southern and Eastern Ohio.

The speakers for our Negative were, Joseph Farley, Kenneth Wilcox, Ruby Gladys Mercer, and Barrett Young, alternate. Those of the Affirmative were, Robert Dixon, Virginia Knecht, Harold Wyckoff, and Betty Jones, alternate.

The debaters as mentioned, ably lived up to their reputation.

"Joe" Farley, a veteran of the last year's team and Captain of this year's successful team, splendidly did his part as an experienced debater.

Kenneth Wilcox, in his stately manner, put defeat for his team out of the question.

Marion Sprague very willingly and creditably showed her true Athens High School spirit in taking Ruby Gladys Mercer's place, owing to Ruby's illness.

Ruby Gladys Mercer proved her sureness and distinctiveness to her audience after she recovered and took her place in the second debate.

Barrett Young, as an alternate, upheld the record set by his brother in former years.
For the Affirmative:

Robert Dixon clearly demonstrated his oratorical ability with his very enthusiastic and forceful manner. Let it hereby be remembered that Robert is a born orator.

Virginia Knecht spoke with remarkable poise. Her calm explanation and perfect enunciations were marked.

Harold Wyckoff was our proof of "Small but mighty." Indeed, we are justly proud of Harold.

Betty Jones, the alternate, ably carried out her speaking ability.

On all the "jaunts" the teams enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent. The usual "quips and cranks" were forthcoming.

Mrs. Price and Mr. Rupp coached the teams, ably assisted by Miss Pickering.

The success of this year's team is, in a manner of speaking, a challenge to next year's team to rival, if not surpass it. Such success should be an inspiration and incentive for a greater and bigger success next year. Students, it is up to you what kind of debating teams you can have in the future. What shall they be—successes or failures? You can have what you want, if you work hard enough. That is something to remember.

Commercial Club

The Commercial students of Athens High School have organized what is known as the Commercial Club. It is the first of its kind to have been organized in Athens High. Mr. Sargent, instructor in charge of commercial work, helped in the organization of the club. Under his supervision and with the help of the other commercial teachers, the club is a splendid success. It was organized at the beginning of the second semester of the school year and from that time, various meetings have been held.

At the first meeting of the club, Mr. Sargent called the meeting to order, and Harold Nice was elected temporary chairman. The following officers were elected:

President.....Harold Nice
Vice-President..... Clarence Littler
Secretary and Treasurer.....Wilbur Imes

Aims of the club are to co-ordinate class work with actual business practice, to promote sociability within the Commercial Departments, to serve as connecting link between study in school and community activities, to create and maintain the interests of alumni and all members of commercial work of the high school.

A Valentine Party was given on February 13th in the corridor of the high school building. A large number of students attended and all who were present enjoyed a very pleasant evening. A business meeting was held the first of March and it was unanimously decided that a Commercial paper should be published by the students of the club.

An election was then held and the following staff was chosen:

Editor ..... Nelle Mariner
Assistant Editor.....Mary Cox
Art Editor .....Rex Roush
Literary Editor.....Nelle Shipley
Joke Editor.....William Hughes
Business Manager.....John Niggemeyer

The paper was called the "Commercial Review" and contains articles of interest to the students of the high school, but particularly the Commercial students. The first issue was put out on March 23rd to Commercial students only. The second edition was published May 11th, and was bigger and better than the one before. Both papers contained snappy jokes and good articles.

"A" Association

The Athletic Association of Athens High School was reorganized this year. The association had not been functioning during the past few years.

Membership of the organization consists of all "A" men of the high school. As soon as a student earns the coveted "A," he is initiated into the association.

The purpose of the clan is to better promote and control athletics in Athens High School. Meetings are held at least once a month, at which time all issues of interest to athletics are discussed as well as all important matters in regard to athletics "on the hill." Another added feature of the meetings is the social get-together which is very instrumental in bringing into a close relationship all of the "A" men.

The supervision of the organization is in the hands of Faculty members. The duties of the Faculty are to act in an advisory manner and to carefully consider all matters which come before the men. The committee consists of the Principal, Faculty Manager, and the Coach of the high school.

The initial election this year resulted in the honors being bestowed in the following manner:

President ..... Darrell Watkins
Vice-President .....Robert Clark
Secretary .....James Devlin
Treasurer .....Mr. Walter Porter

It is anticipated and hoped that a great deal of good will follow and that this organization will be instrumental in maintaining the highest possible moral standard in high school athletics.

ILLUSTRATING CICERO'S ORATION AGAINST CATALINE

CORNELIA AND HER JEWELS

Latin Play

Last year the Classical Club of Ohio University invited the Cicero Class of Athens High School to meet with them one night and to present some little scene or act to illustrate the work being done and accomplished by the students. The class presented two familiar scenes from Roman History: "Cornelia and Her Jewels" and "A Denunciation of the Conspiracy of Cataline," by Cicero, in a senate scene. Both proved to be such successes that they were repeated, in an assembly, before the high school.

In "Cornelia and Her Jewels" was Octa Kincade as Cornelia, the inspired, home-loving woman; Katharine McKee as the frivolous wife of a rich husband; Fred Guthrie and Elmer Thompson as the jewels, and Lloyd Wagner as the messenger.

In the Senate scene, Ross Gandee very ably played the part of Cicero, the orator. Ronald Smith was very good as the leading conspirator, Cataline. The other members of the class, William Davis, Angella Woods, George Gibbs, Marie Haning, Josephine Marshall, Margaret Crow, Ruby Gladys Mercer, Abbott Wilcox, Ruth Miller, Theodora Junod, and Kenneth Wilcox were senators (wise old men who controlled the destiny of the Roman Republic). Consider the striking appearance of all these attired in the proper Roman togas!

Fearing that a few people in the audience might loose track of the proceedings on account of the rapidity with which the players spoke, an English translation was given before the Senate scene, by Kenneth Wilcox, and the modern version of "Cornelia and Her Jewels," by Lloyd Wagner.

A word of praise is surely deserved by those who learned line after line of latin in order to present such a play.

Too much can not be said in praise of the efforts of Miss Leech, who by her patience, knowledge of Latin, and coaching ability, aided tremendously in putting across such a success.

Honor Society

Last year a constitution was drawn up, and application was made for membership in the National Honor Society. The constitution was immediately certified and Athens High School was given membership.

To become a member of this society, one must live up to certain specified rules. To be a candidate for election one must stand, scholastically, in the first four of his class. In addition to the requisite for scholarship, he must be reliable and have good character. The part he takes in all high school activities is also taken into consideration, so one can see that it is indeed no small honor to be elected to this society. Only Juniors and Seniors are eligible.

Last year ten Seniors and six Juniors received membership. They are as follows:

SENIORS

Ruth Miller, Luster Cooley, Angella Woods, Edward Sharp, Anna Marie Davis, Lewis Brown Francis Gallagher, Hazel Chase, Bernard Moriarity, and Robert Clutter.

JUNIORS

Lloyd Wagner, Octa Kincade, Marian Sprague, Nelle Mariner, Ruby Gladys Mercer, and Elizabeth Horn.

This organization makes it possible to recognize the leaders, the real live wires and challenges others to try for this distinction. You students of Athens High School who wish really to amount to something, try to acquire all these requisites of scholarship, reliability, good character, and leadership that you may have the honor and distinction of belonging to this society. There are, naturally, many responsibilities thrust upon the members, but he who can become a member, can shoulder, easily enough, his responsibilities.

The Cast That Will Put On Its Last High School Play

When Mr. Stailey, Coach of the Senior Play, picked "Clarence" for the Class of '23 to present he picked it with the purpose of choosing a different kind of play from that of last year, or the year before.

"Clarence" is a four-act comedy by Booth Tarkington. It first appeared in the Hudson Theatre of New York City, and later in other large cities. Later on it was taken up by the moving picture people and shown all over the country with Wallace Reid as "Clarence." And then on April 19-20, 1923, it was shown at our own theatre, The Majestic, where it won the approval of all.

Although the Senior Class cannot brag of having any Wallace Reids or any other people of great fame, it can boast of having a group of willing workers. When the judges picked the cast they selected with approval of the Seniors, enough material for two casts. As this article is being written no permanent cast has been selected, but now you know just "Who's who." This being the last opportunity of the Class of '23 in which to display its acting ability before a high school audience, it expects to put on one of the best Senior plays ever staged in Athens.

The names of the people that will stage their last high school play are as follows:

Clarence	Kenneth Wilcox, Earl Hickman
Violet Pinney	Dorothy McCormick, Gilberta Hill
Bobby Wheeler	William Hughes, Joseph Farley
Cora Wheeler	Elizabeth Jones, Katharine McKee
Mrs. Wheeler	Mary Russel, Marion Sprague
Mr. Wheeler	Barrett Young, Walter Muir
Mrs. Martyn	Ruby Gladys Mercer, Elizabeth Horn
Della	Nelle Shipley, Dorothy Dailey
Dinwiddie	Donold Addicott, Wayne Miller
French Maid	Vivian Landis, Margaret Crow
Mr. Stem	Ronald Smith, Maurice Guthrie

The Belle of Barnstapoole

It has been the custom for several years to stage an operetta each year. There have been some brilliant successes among them, but it is thought that this year's operetta, "The Belle of Barnstapoole," surpassed them all. The majority of those in the cast had had considerable amateur experience on the stage, and with the able coaching of Homer Baird, it was inevitable that the show should be a success. Miss Grace Spring, the supervisor of music in the Athens Schools, coached the songs and Miss Carson, of Ohio University, directed the dances.

The plot was full of unique turns and twists which easily captured and held the attention of the audience. Julia, is the haughty Belle of Barnstapoole. She is fascinating as well as proud and beautiful. All the sailor lads fall hopelessly in love with her, but she scorns them all. Barnabas Lee, a wandering artist, happens on the scene and also falls in love with Julia, who returns his love. The sailors, disgusted, and despairing, capture Barnabas, and stow him abroad the "Bounding Billow" which is about to start on a year's voyage.

In the meantime, other young lovers are having their troubles. The gentle Nance is beloved of the bashful Joe Stout. Because of his shyness, Joe fears to propose to Nance and induces Bill Salt to do so in his name. Bill promises to do so, but before he can discover who Nance is, he meets Julia and thinks she is the one he is seeking, so proposes to her for Joe.

Julia tells Bill to bid his friend try his luck a year later, when the ship returns. Bill returns to Joe and tells him of his luck only to learn of his mistake. Before Joe can find Nance, the whistle sounds for the ship and he is forced to leave.

Julia tells Nance of Joe's love for her and Nance is heartbroken. The Barnstapoole girls, Delia, Dora, Daisy, and their friends, having quarreled with the sailors, show indifference at their departure. The ship sails and Barnabas is taken with it.

Act II takes place a year later.

The townspeople eagerly await the "Bounding Billow." The Barnstapoole girls meet a group of artists from the town and to help carry out their indifferent attitude to Ned, Jim, Jack and the other sailors, take pleasure in going to meet them accompanied by the artists. The sailors find that they have recovered from their love for Julia, and that they really love the Barnstapoole girls.

Bill Salt explains his mistake to Julia, and offers himself in place of Joe. She accepts him, thinking that she is deserted by all the other men, and Bill is better than none. The return of Barnabas Lee releases Bill from this rash act. Joe finds Nance and explains the situation to her. The artists return to town and the sailors and girls become reconciled. The act ends with the promise of many happy weddings in the near future.

ORCHESTRA

During the fall of nineteen twenty-two and soon after the swinging of the Athens High School's doors had resumed its former regularity, there could be heard, at irregular intervals, the squeaking of violins, shrieking of saxophones, and other wierd noises floating down the old hill.

Mystified glances and excited whisperings were given and received by the students of the high school. Then out came the truth which passed from one to another until a look of pleasure had crossed each and every countenance. This was the cause of the joy:

An orchestra, consisting of ten pieces, had been organized, with the able assistance of Miss Spring, music director. Mr. Raymond Connett became director of the orchestra and under his capable leadership it was rounded into shape. Was this not a real cause for rejoicing?

The first performances of these youthful musicians have been given in a very commendable manner.

This is the orchestra's first year together and the members are all deserving of high praise. The orchestra is composed of eight high school students and two from East Side School and Central School. Following is a list of the members and their respective positions: Christine Dailey, Piano; Mary Mansfield, Mary Stalder, Violet Collins, Harold Brown, and Gainford Beck, Violins; Rex Roush and Kenneth Wilcox, Saxophones; Edgar Zick, Cornet; Robert Schmidt, Clarinet; and Mr. Raymond Connett, Cello.

It is hoped that some time in the near future the orchestra will so advance and enlarge that it will take its place beside the athletic teams, debaters, etc., on the platform of the Athens High School activities.

BROWN PRIZES

Athens High School is lucky in having so many sincere friends among the townspeople. One of our most beloved and appreciated friends is Mr. J. D. Brown

Mr. Brown voluntarily gives one hundred and fifty dollars to the high school every year to be distributed in prizes among the students. The persons most deserving of these prizes are decided upon by the Faculty. Reliability, scholarship, influence, etc., are taken into consideration in deciding the winners and it is, indeed, a great honor to win one of these prizes.

These prizes cause much friendly competition among the students, and thus help to advance the best interest of the school.

We wish to show our appreciation of Mr. Brown's very active interest in the welfare of our high school. We are glad to have such a friend as Mr. Brown, one whose interest in us is so personal and so helpful.

The following are the winners of the Brown prizes for the school year of 1921-1922:

"THE LEADING GROCER"

Kat McKee—Dick works nights at the Varsity Inn.
Margaret Crow—He does? And when does he get his sleep?
Kat—Oh, he goes to school during the day.

Brain—Is that your half sister?
Les—No. that's my penny ante.

Mother—Johnny, don't run so fast around the house. You'll fall and hurt yourself.
Johnny—If I don't run fast it'll hurt anyway. Dad's chasing me.

She—Can you drive with one hand.
He—You bet I can.
She—Then won't you please pick up my handkerchief from the floor?
